Farmers and Consumers Bulletin

February is Black History Month

VOLUME 54 NO. 2

FEBRUARY 2006

SPARKS' PERSPECTIVE

Ron Sparks
Commissioner

This legislative session the Department of Agriculture and Industries has several bills we are focusing on that will help protect our farmers and producers, our community, and consumers. Below I have summarized each piece of legislation.

Senate Bill 308 - Sponsored by Sen. Roger Bedford, this bill makes any endangering of Alabama's Food and/or Water a Terrorist Act. SB 308 would make it an act of terror in Alabama to tamper with our food or water resources. It is an amendment to Alabama's current Anti-Terrorism Act of 2002. The endangerment is an intentional act, and there are exclusions under the proposal for "bona fide experiments and actions related to those experiments carried on by commonly recognized research facilities or agricultural producers." Anyone found guilty under this proposal could be found guilty of either a Class B or Class A Felony, depending on the allegations. Presently, this bill has been assigned to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Arrests for Katrina Disaster Related Thefts

Department of Agriculture and Industries Commissioner Ron Sparks announced the arrests of four suspects on charges of receiving stolen property, 1st degree, during Hurricane Katrina relief efforts. The suspects, who were hired as sub-contractors for FEMA, are believed to have stolen over $250,000 worth of property out of the City of New Orleans. The items include backhoes, automobiles, automobile parts and trailers, motorcycles, tools, an air compressor, and all-terrain vehicles. The investigation was conducted by the Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries, the Butler County Sheriff's Office, and the Crenshaw County Sheriff's Office.

"I am proud that our investigators were able to work together with Sheriff Harris and Sheriff West to catch these predators who would stoop so low as to take advantage of people in New Orleans after they had already gone through so much," said Sparks.

Butler County District Attorney John Andrews will be prosecuting the case against the four suspects. Commissioner Sparks praised the county sheriffs and District Attorney Andrews for their joint cooperation.

Sheriff Diane Harris was especially upset that the property had been brought back to Butler County. County officials and residents had held cookouts to help feed evacuees following Hurricane Katrina. "I am happy that my office was able to take part in this arrest and the recovery of the stolen property," said Harris. "We are glad to have been able to assist

Helping Rural Alabama

(L-R) Speaker of the House Seth Hammett, Demopolis Mayor Cecil Williamson, Commissioner Ron Sparks, Sen. Lowell Barron, National Federation of Independent Businesses of Alabama Director Rosemary Elebash, and Rep. Frank McDaniel announce legislation that would create a Center for Rural Alabama. "I want to commend Sen. Barron and Rep. McDaniel for this bill. Every day more and more of rural Alabama is lost and we must do everything in our power to keep rural Alabama alive," stated Commissioner Sparks. "We've got pockets in this state that are doing very well, but they are mostly in urban areas. We've got 1.4 million people living in rural Alabama that aren't doing so well," Sen. Barron said. Speaker Seth Hammett stated, "This center will ensure that the voice of rural Alabama is heard when the state is looking for new industry." Rep. McDaniel is the House sponsor of the bill.

Galliher, this bill seeks to provide for the confidentiality of information initially gathered by the State Department of Agriculture and Industries as the department implements and maintains a database for Animal Identification in accord and consistent with the USDA's National Animal Identification System. Premises ID Registration has been implemented in the last year and Animal ID Registration is not far behind. The information on premises and animals, gathered at the request of the Commissioner, is to protect the interest of public health, safety, and welfare. Presently, the bill received a favorable vote by the House Agriculture and Forestry Committee, and is now headed to the House Floor for debate and/or approval.

House Joint Resolution 106 -- Sponsored by Rep. Jack

Page and joined by many other House Members, this is a joint resolution calling for the removal of trade, travel, and financial restrictions with Cuba. The Department of Agriculture and Industries has worked for four years to open trade with Cuba, and in the process, we have enabled millions of dollars of Alabama poultry, poultry products, food items, wood, and wood products to be sold to Cuba. This resolution requests that the United States Congress remove all restrictions relating to Cuba so that we can continue to increase and improve upon trade with Cuba.

I believe that this set of agricultural related legislation deserves your support and the legislators who have sponsored them deserve many thanks. If you have any questions, or have suggestions for future legislation, please call our legal staff at 334/240-7117.

PRODUCT SPOTLIGHT

During the months of January and February, the Department of Agriculture and Industries is presenting a promotional campaign across the state called "An Alabama Breakfast." This activity is designed to promote Alabama products to Alabama consumers as quality made products. It is important for us to identify Alabama products on store shelves around our state and create brand awareness of these products within our Alabama communities.

"An Alabama Breakfast"

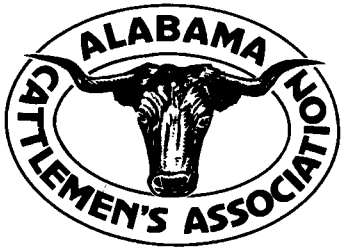

The Breakfast campaign includes a display of approximately 20 Alabama products which would fall under the category of breakfast foods. "An Alabama Breakfast" will be featured on news segments in cities such as Montgomery, Dothan, Huntsville and Mobile. A list of each company participating, as well as where their products can be purchased, will be included on our website, www.agi.alabama.gov.

So when you are looking for a great breakfast this new year, do not forget to cook with your own state's products. You can also find some tasty recipes on these company's websites. Try them out and see why cooking with Alabama foods will be the best breakfast choice you can make!

Katrina Relief Songwriter Jamey Johnson Releases Album

Jamey Johnson, songwriter from Montgomery, AL who performed in September at the Department of Agriculture and Industries Katrina Relief Concert, has released his debut album The Dollar. Spearheading the album is the self-penned title track which is top 30 and climbing on the country singles charts.

Jamey volunteered for eight years in the Marine Corps Reserve and then later did construction recovery work following disasters. His hardworking attitude led him to Nashville where he devoted himself to making music. He signed with BNA Records in April of 2005. Not long after, he was in the studio cutting songs for his debut album, The Dollar.

"This has been my dream since I picked up that first guitar when I was a kid. You know, Montgomery is only about 4 1/2 hours from Nashville by car, but by guitar, it's about five years," said Johnson.

"We are proud that Jamey Johnson took the time to help us here in Alabama while he was in the middle of following his dream," said Commissioner Sparks. "It sounds like a great album and we wish him all the success in the world."

Black Land Ownership in the South

By Daniel Robinson

As one travels through the "Deep South" during the summer months, most likely you will see beautiful crops growing and cattle grazing in the valley and along the hillside. Soon afterward your eyes behold this beautiful landscape, the reality sets in .....Where are the black farmers? Or better yet, where are the black landowners?

Yes, it once was the way of life in the south, with blacks tilling the soil as sharecroppers and/or tenants. In the midst of the farming population, there were a large number of black landowners, who worked just as hard to support their families from farming the land as other farmers. Unfortunately, many factors have contributed to the decline of the black farming period. Where does the blame lie? Some would argue that it was one single issue, however; others perhaps highlight multiply reasons that led to the demise of the black farmer. In fact, the number of black farms has decreased to the extent that some have begun to call the black farmer an "endangered species."

According to a study by Robert Zabawa with Tuskegee University, the decline in black land ownership in the U.S. is well documented, starting with Robert Browne's Only Six Million Acres: The Decline of Black Owned Land in the Rural South and special issue entitled "Blacks in Rural America" in The Review of Black Political Economy. Zabawa highlighted that it was a report by the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, "The Decline of Black Farming in America" that focused national attention on what black farmers in the south already knew, that they had been in an "agriculture depression" for decades. More specifically, for the better part of the twentieth century, black farmers have lost more farms and land at a higher rate than their white counterparts. At the national level, black farmers reached the summit of farm ownership in 1920 with 925,708 farms. By 1992, the number of black farms decreased by 98% to just 18,816 farms, however; white farmers only saw a 65% decline.

For the south in general (where the majority of black owned farms exist) and for Alabama in particular, the decline in black farm numbers is just as acute. For example 1910-1992, blacks owned 1.5 million acres, but by 1992, that figure stood at 150,000 acres, which represents a decline of 89%, compared to 35% of white farms. Since 1992, black land ownership has continued to spiral downward.

Prior to becoming Director of Ag Promotions for the Department of Agriculture and Industries, George Paris spent 15 of the last 20 years assisting African American farm families acquire and maintain their land holding in Alabama. According to Paris, African Americans in 1920 owned 18 million acres in the U.S. and leased 17 million additional acres. Since 1920, the number of farmers has been declining at alarming rates and one USDA report indicated there would be no African American farmers by the year 2000. This disastrous prediction was prevented by a massive effort of community based organizations and foundations working together. The rate of black land loss continued to decline until 1997 and since then has seen a very small increase.

By way of discussions with farmers and related professionals, one single reason can not be given as the attributing factor for the loss of black landowners. The migration of blacks from rural to urban areas, mechanization of farming and poverty caused a rapid shift to industrial centers in the north and west. Many who remained on the farm, in an effort to survive, incurred large debts to purchase equipment and additional land, were later forced to sell out or substantially reduced their operation. Also it has been well documented and later with a Federal Judge ruling that there had been some discrimination against black farmers by USDA and administering government programs and especially with farm loans. Such practice is often cited as a reason for the decline in black ownership. In conclusion, "reasons" rather than the "REASON" must be cited for the decline. And given the importance of African American farmers to rural America, ways must be found to turn the trend around.

On the Header this Month:

In honor of Black History Month, featured on the header this month is a field of collard greens grown by Macon County farmer, Mr. Al Hooks. All of the vegetables Mr. Hooks produces are organically grown. While participating in a project sponsored by the Department of Agriculture and Industries and others, Mr. Hooks introduced plasticulture into his operation five years ago. We are grateful for the significant contribution Mr. Hooks and his family have made to Alabama Agriculture over the years.
